heated debate as Las Vegas Sands is dropping its push for expanding gaming.

The Las Vegas-based company seems to have given up on trying to get gambling in Florida—outside of Native American reservations — after failing multiple times to get votes passed, the blog Florida Politics reports.

Las Vegas Sands was a casino powerhouse that pushed the efforts to expand gaming across Florida, starting with the idea of opening a major casino resort in South Florida. If successful, the fear from the opposition was gambling properties may begin popping up in other municipalities and eventually harm Orlando's family-friendly brand.

Companies against the expansion of gaming in Florida included titans like Walt Disney World and several hotel and hospitality chains that worried the region's squeaky-clean reputation could be tarnished with the inclusion of gambling.

But it looks like the fight is over ... for now.

$109M Oviedo Medical Center breaks ground

Orlando Business Journal - The Buzz

Anne Lottman

Community leaders and Oviedo Medical Center's new CEO, K.C. Donahey gathered Sept. 24 to kick off construction of Seminole County's new hospital in a ceremonial groundbreaking event.

Oviedo Medical Center, at the intersection of State Road 417 and Red Bug Lake Road, will stand on a 48-acre site. The three-story, 198,000-square-foot hospital will be an addition to the 12-bed, 11,000-square-foot Oviedo ER, which also is set to expand to 20 beds. Oviedo Medical Center will create about 200 new jobs, many of which Donahey expects will be filled by local medical professionals.

Donahey said there was “a demonstrated need” for a full-service hospital in the area. Beyond offering high quality and cost effective health care to the community, he said residents can expect it to “look and feel more like a hotel.”

The 64-bed acute care hospital, owned by HCA Holdings Inc., will feature diagnostics, surgery, dietary, intensive care and women’s services, among others. The contractor is Layton Construction and the architect is Gould Turner Group.

Chief Lars White from the Oviedo Fire Department said there is tremendous impact to the community. “About 55 percent to 60 percent of our patients are transported to the Oviedo ER.” White said he expects that number to continue to grow.

Oviedo Mayor Dominic Persampiere, who took part in the official groundbreaking, emphasized that the hospital will provide medical services just five minutes from people’s homes. “Think about what this means for our community,” Persampiere said.

The hospital is expected to serve more than 35,000 residents in Oviedo and east Seminole County in its first year. The opening date is slated for January 2017.

Breaking: UCF reveals new plan for downtown campus

Orlando Business Journal

Rachel Williams

The University of Central Florida board of trustees on Sept. 24 agreed upon a revised plan to create a downtown Orlando campus.

The plan proposes a new funding method, which asks the state for just one-third of the necessary funds, or about $19 million. The other two-thirds would be funded by the university and private donations.

Originally, the university asked the state for $58 million to build the first academic building of the downtown campus. Even though the Florida Legislature allocated $15 million in the last state budget session, ultimately the funding was denied by Gov. Rick Scott on June 23.

The revised UCF Downtown plan includes building a $60 million academic services building that will house 13 academic programs, including nine that address workforce needs — one more than the original proposal.

Many of the proposed programs are in the health care and technology sectors, and are expected to attract more than 7,000 students in the first year.

The university also proposed spending $5 million to renovate the existing Center for Emerging Media campus in downtown to better use existing resources. The newly-revamped building will house programs for about 1,300 students.

The downtown campus project has been heavily watched by the community because of the economic impact it could have on Central Florida. It is expected to create about 4,000 new jobs and serve as a catalyst for the Creative Village, a $1 billion mixed-use development project.

The plan will now head to the state later this year, putting the campus on track to open in fall 2018 — one year later than originally planned.
