2022 LEGISLATIVE SESSION UPDATE - WEEK 3

With the third week of the 2022 Florida Legislative session now complete, the Legislature is now one-third of the way through the sixty day session. Last week was a busy week, with several notable bills gaining momentum including the House Legislative redistricting map, the extension of the scheduled repeal date for VISIT FLORIDA, and a new public record exemption.

Additionally, Senate President Wilton Simpson urged for an increase to the minimum wage for state workers to $15 an hour. This is an increase from the $13 an hour, which he pushed for during last year's Legislative session. This proposed increase would cost the State $1 billion, but Simpson argues “We have the cash this year to do it, so there’s no excuse.” In 2020, a ballot amendment passed with 61% of the vote, that would raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour by 2026. Under Simpson’s plan, this would speed up the process by four (4) years. Several state agencies are struggling to retain and recruit workers and this could alleviate the high turnover rate. Along with this measure, HB 943 has moved forward, which prevents cities and counties from requiring high minimum wages for their own employees. Despite the opposition, the bill passed with a 10-7 vote in the House, while the Senate version (SB 1124) failed to get a vote after running out of time during the debate.

Lastly, the House Redistricting map (H 8013), which defines the 120 House districts, was advanced in committee and is now ready for a vote on the House floor. While Rep. Omphroy crossed party lines to vote yes, other Democrats criticized the map of not having enough public involvement and not accounting for the growth in minority populations – which were concerns from previous committee meetings. Representative Leek, the Chair of the House Redistricting Committee, stated that that map had been worked on for months and the product produced is constitutionally compliant. This proposed map could potentially have 19 current House members, who seek another term, be in competition with one another.

Additionally, these bills would preempt regulation of vacation rentals to the State of Florida, which would prohibit local law, ordinance, or regulation from allowing or requiring inspections or licensing of public lodging establishments.

A priority of Governor DeSantis, this bill would allow consumers to control how their personal data is shared and sold. Last year, business interests strongly opposed this bill, stating it would cause substantial operational and legal expenses. Ultimately, the bill died last Session, however it has been filed again in 2022.

We are working with our legislators to ensure that the measures in this bill, if passed, are fair and tailored to meet their objectives and would apply to apply equally to short-term rental companies.

emergency, and streamlining the trustee foreclosure process to make it less time consuming. The proposal would also allow developers to deliver certain documents to purchasers electronically and clarify provisions regarding the delivery and filing of other required documents. These proposed changes would help bring the statute up to date relative to the current business model and available technology.
